

THE 119: Attending the Play

This course is designed for those who wish to acquire a basic understanding of how to view a play and is intended for the general student population. Students will attend various types of productions ranging from college theatre to community theatre to professional theatre, followed by in-class discussion. Performing artists, theatre designers, technicians and related theatre personnel will be invited to discuss their particular area of production. Students will also read about and discuss theatre in its various forms. Three class hours a week. Additional time is required for attending plays. For non-theatre majors. Gen. Ed. Competencies Met: Human Expression. 3 credits Not offered every year

Credits: 3

Program: Theatre